Student Council

FOREWORD

My personal retrospection of high school's four years is filled with happy thoughts of events that were so much a part of my life. I think that if each and every senior took time to briefly skim the pages of the mind, the same wonderful feeling of gaiety and happiness would strike him also.

The lasting effect of these four years lies in the now carefully formed opinions of high school life, compared to the first, incomplete, impressions. Each and every one of us has progressed from self-involved, to appreciative and responsible individuals, interested in the group and the welfare of the school. We have felt the thrill of accomplishment, and we have realized the virtue of work and perseverance. By counseling us wisely, our able faculty has instilled in us the value of getting along with our associates and the meaning of discipline.

As young adults, we realize that each event, whether it was the dignified pageantry of the senior prom or the quaint informality of classroom discussion, was an important step in the formation of our characters. Thus, it has been a great honor, and pleasure, as president of the Student Council, to introduce to you the record of outstanding moments that constituted our last, most memorable year at Lyman Hall High School.

DEDICATION of the 1959 SIGNER

*We, the Class of 1959, express our sincere gratitude for the friendliness, interest, and helpful services of Miss Muriel Quint, our mathematics teacher, junior class advisor, and yearbook coordinator. To her we dedi-

To Dedicate

The end is the product of many beginnings. The integrated, well-rounded personality is the product of many influences, and we, on the road to maturity, find our guidance in sound principles and firm leadership. With interest, assistance, and direction, we develop the best that is in us. Each personality unfolds, as abilities and capacities are realized.

In the course of our high school years, we are led to cultivate our skills, our ideals, our ambitions, ourselves. It is the purpose of this yearbook to trace the progress which we, as individuals and in groups, have made towards the realization of all that we are. And, because we take pride in our school and in its effect upon us, it is only proper that we devote these initial pages of our yearbook to those persons whose devoted interests have made it possible.

Tribute to parents

We, the Class of 1959, would like to pay tribute to you, our parents, who have helped make possible the fine education each one of us has received. You have been effective in giving every student greater opportunities for learning so that he will be better prepared to go forward into the future. Without your patronage and co-operation we would have been unable to have the fine school we have today. We sincerely wish to extend our appreciation to you who have given your time and efforts to the advancement and interests of Lyman Hall High School.

Dear Mr. Curtis,

We would like to express our deep appreciation for all the things you have done for us in our lifetime. Because of your efforts we have been able to attend new and up-to-date schools and have the privilege of graduating from the beautiful new Lyman Hall High School. You have always put our welfare before your own and have been willing to fight for our right to the best education that Wallingford could provide. We know that the job hasn't always been easy and we hope that we can justify your faith in us.

Sincerely yours,
The Class of 1959

Dear Miss Cate,

We thank you for your many years of service to Lyman Hall, for your helpfulness and understanding, for your sense of humor, and for the truths you have taught us. We shall always remember you, Miss Cate, with sincere appreciation and admiration. We hope that your memories of Lyman Hall will be pleasant ones, and that the years ahead will be filled with the blessings which you so rightfully deserve.

Very truly yours,
The Class of 1959

Dear Mr. Fernald,

We, the class of 1959, wish to sincerely thank you for your guidance, work, and help these last four years. We appreciate your interest in our class, your advice on our problems, and your permission to carry out our plans. We will always hold you in our fond memories of Lyman Hall.

Very truly yours,
The Class of 1959

20 To the personnel who day by day take care of our school in so many ways, to those who keep our new building clean and neat, to the workers who carefully prepare and cheerfully serve hundreds of meals every school day, to all of you who contribute to our health and comfort we offer our sincere thanks.

OF PERSONNEL

TO PERCEIVE

When the individual enters Lyman Hall for the first time, he is met by a vast storehouse of facilities and implements, which will enhance his intellectual pursuit. Whatever his educational desire may be, he will have no trouble finding the tools for his endeavor.

In A Building, the Math and Science Departments are furnished with the most modern devices and the ablest teachers to present the fundamentals of math and science. Both the biological and the physical sciences are studied in modern laboratories and classrooms. In the student's quest for cultural knowledge, B Building acquaints him with all phases of today's and yesterday's cultural fields. Modern books, recordings and equipment enable the student to completely understand English, foreign languages, the historical subjects. In C Building the library offers an assorted collection of reference materials and general reading matter. D Building presents the busiest of all areas in school life. The gym goes through many changes as it becomes the scene of basketball games, proms and school dances. It is here that muscles are toned, conditioned and coordinated and the mind and body are conjoined. E Building is Lyman Hall's nerve center. A vast array of guidance labs and publication and conference rooms line the halls of this important segment of the building. F Building is a specialized area of Lyman Hall where students are prepared to meet the standards of office routine and business life. Practical equipment aids the students in their devotion to typing, office practice and stenography. Ethical development is the keynote to G Building where music emanates through the atmosphere and is accompanied by rich, aromatic consequences of homemaking and the spectacular emulations of art. The mechanically-minded find their paradise in all important H Building, where foundations are built for future engineers and architects. Materials for planning and, ultimately, for construction are featured in this industrial section of Lyman Hall.

Consequently, the stage is already well-planned and set, even before the individual first approaches the magnificent edifice of Lyman Hall High School. The ultra-modern techniques and methods at Lyman Hall lead the way to an educational program of high degree, a program which offers commendable training in preparation for college and life.

ADMINISTRATION

PRINCIPAL, MR. LANGDON D. FERNALD

Good classes come in cycles. Among the faculty it seems to be the consensus of opinion that the Class of 1959 is a "good" class. It possesses many brilliant minds, and I predict a great future for many of its members. There are many in this class who could well adopt the slogan, "The possible we do immediately; the impossible may take us a little longer."

Graduation terminates one of the principal phases of every pupil's life. It is also a time of "commencement." It is a type of Alpha and Omega — the beginning and the end. Your high school days will soon be over; your future lies ahead. What you are to be, you are now becoming. I wish you the best of good fortune in your future work. Let me give you this motto; make it a part of you.

"This is my work, my blessing, not my doom,
Of all who live, I am the one by whom
This work can best be done, in the right way."

TO RECEIVE

After the individual has orientated himself to the temporary complexity of high school, work and study begin. The mind inaugurates its search and is expertly fed by a competent faculty and administration. The strange forms in plane geometry, the unfamiliar phrases in English, and the uncanny instruments of scientific experiment, slowly take forms of understanding. Gradually the learning process evolves, and the exuberant thrill of knowledge touches every body, mind and soul.

At this stage, individual development is very significant and the consequences so important. All aids, boosts and attention comprise the individual's environment, but it is all kindled by the individual's ambition and initiative. Only his effort can determine success, and if effort is applied, the fruits and memories of his labor are more comforting and everlasting.

PHYSICAL EDUCATION

Exercise implies training for improvement, whether it be moral, intellectual or physical. Physical improvement, however, assures a healthy life; and thus, the path toward mental improvement is made free from impediments of poor health and faulty body functions.

HEALTH EDUCATION

Lyman Hall offers courses directly related to a sound body, mind and soul. Through health education, the individual is introduced to methods and techniques prescribed for a healthy state of being. The consequences of this course are not only manifested in terms of health preservation, but in personal appearance, which is such an important part of the student's life.

HOMEMAKING

The household is an important entity in the lives of all of us. It is the foremost setting of the family, as well as a provider of shelter, sustenance, and love. Proper management of such a significant edifice and the knowledge of the many correlated skills are definite requisites for the directors of tomorrow's families.

INDUSTRIAL ARTS

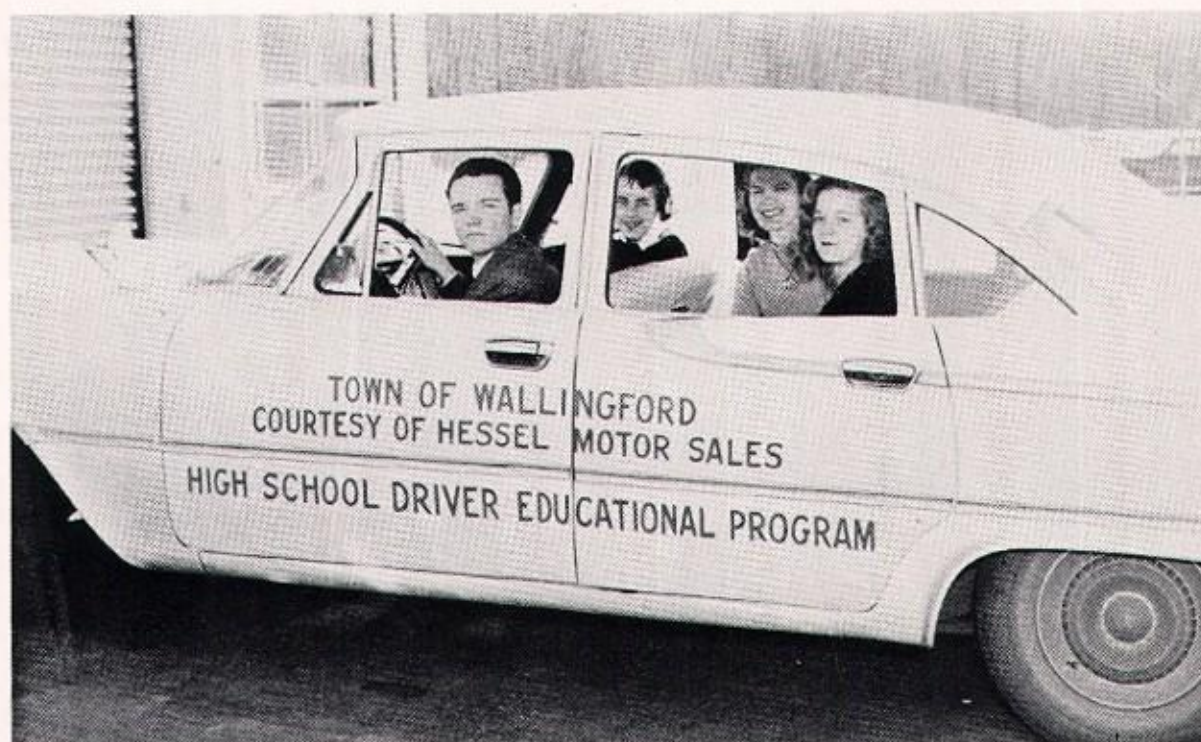

Skill and ingenuity are the cornerstones of America. Our country started, grew and developed on the coattails of man's dextrous talents. The mechanical mind has always been respected, and industrial adroitness has served to make our nation's foundation a strong one.

DRIVER EDUCATION

The American public has accepted the automobile with open arms. Our country's entire distributive system has the car as its common denominator. Because of the automobile, greater changes have occurred in transportation in the last few decades than had occurred in the entire previous history of the world. For business and pleasure, we consider the car a necessary part of our daily life. It has become such an important and common tool in our civilization that training in skillful and sportsmanlike driving is now a necessary part of one's education.

VOCATIONAL AGRICULTURE

Mother earth is man's key benefactor. Her bountiful treasures supply him with all the tools of his existence, and her rich, plentiful matter sustains his very body. The earth's resources are meaningless, however, unless man provides the transition of such riches. This is the role of the agriculturist, whose well-versed training in the production of crops and livestock constitute society's alimentary system.

COMMERCIAL SUBJECTS

Lyman Hall's commercial building provides proficient training for future secretaries and businessmen. Here the individual is swept into routine in preparation for the standards of office and life. Efficiency and precision are emphasized to insure the individual's qualifications for the business world.

THE LIBRARY

Librarian: Mrs. Virginia Dooley

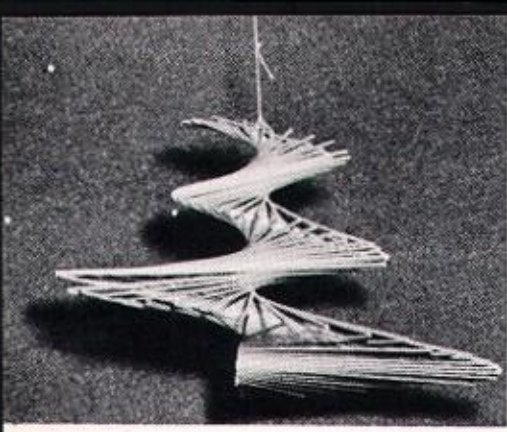

Assistant: Mrs. Mary Fleischer

Just as this yearbook presents a reflection of high school's activities in the 1958-59 school year, so do other books of limitless number and bountiful pleasure manifest outstanding events since time began — events in great ideas and discourse. The knowledge of the ages is recorded and serves as an indispensable reference aid in education.

ART

Most rewarding are the aesthetic and artistic aspects of our environment. Beauty emanates from every creature, and we respond with a great desire to capture, imitate or reproduce some portion of that beauty. Art presents the means for understanding, evaluating, appreciating, and recreating those objects which excite the keenest pleasure, not only of the senses, but also of the mind and soul.

MUSIC

Music excites a keen pleasure, not only because of its pleasing affect on the ear, but because of its reviving and comforting sensation to the mind. Jubilant tones and movements can revive the deepest melancholy and at the same time they can add to the gaiety of activities.

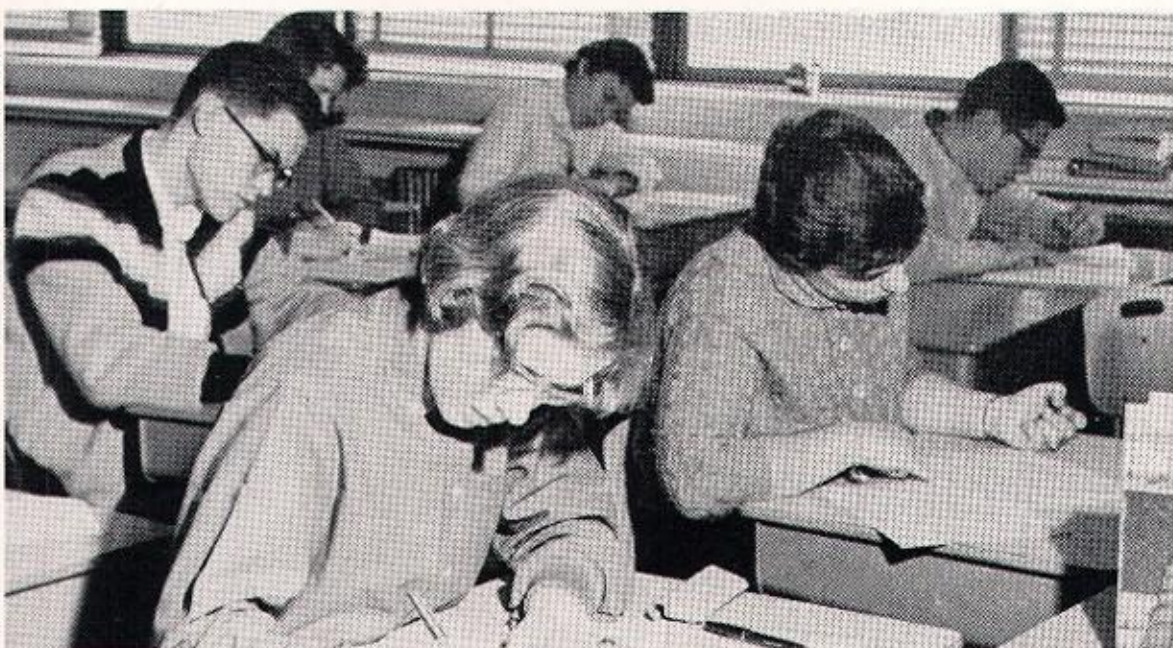

Rhythm and vibration are the common denominators of our entire universe, and it is no wonder that we as integral parts of this nebulous society respond so sincerely to a perceptible form of it.

DRAMATIC ARTS

42 A survey of the development of the drama is only one facet of the course in dramatic arts. The young thespian and the student desirous of socially creative activity enjoy a diversified program of play production, acting, and performance in school plays.

ENGLISH

Man does not live by bread alone, like an animal. He has inner resources that crave outlets. The ability to communicate with others is his most important tool. English develops the skill in oral and written expression that is so essential to his everyday life. Through a diversified reading program, the student becomes better acquainted with the world in which he lives and with the people with whom he has to live. By writing and vocabulary building, he learns to express himself clearly and concisely, so that others may better understand him.

FOREIGN LANGUAGES

The student of foreign languages has the opportunity to learn, through instruction in grammar and translation, the culture of other peoples. The objects of a language course might be classified as linguistic, literary and historical, and the avid student receives preparation for and appreciation of literary masterpieces.

SOCIAL STUDIES

The story of mankind from prehistoric times to the present, and his heritage in art, literature, law and government are within the sphere of social studies. The student studies social, political and economic problems of our country and the world in which we live in order to develop civic habits, attitudes and ideals.

SCIENCE

Far more important than competing with Sputniks already overhead is to learn the lesson taught by all Sputniks. We must mend our technological and scientific fences from the classroom to the launching pad, and there is no human intellect, however great in genius, which cannot find a challenge worthy of its powers in contemplating the structure of the atomic nucleus, the nature of the chemical bond, the physiology of a living organism, the meaning of life, or the origin and future of the universe.

MATHEMATICS

"Our first language is English. Our second is Mathematics." We have seen that, so far, the developing scientific outlook owed its main features to the predilections of the mathematician. Quantitative expression is the consequence of mathematics, and because it gives us a precise description of environmental behavior our deductions about reality are vividly explicit. On a more general scale, mathematics trains us in reason and logic, which are indispensable when facing life's problems and enigmas.

Row three: Robert Regan, Malcolm McPherson, Thomas Sabin, Robert Mack, Frank Aguilera.

Guidance is the process which helps each student to understand himself as an individual and as a member of society so that he may develop his abilities to their utmost potential for his own benefit and so that he may be a responsible participant in a democratic society.

"Best is the man who can himself advise.
He too is good who hearkens to the wise.
But who, himself being witless, will not heed
Another man's wisdom is a fool indeed."

Aristotle

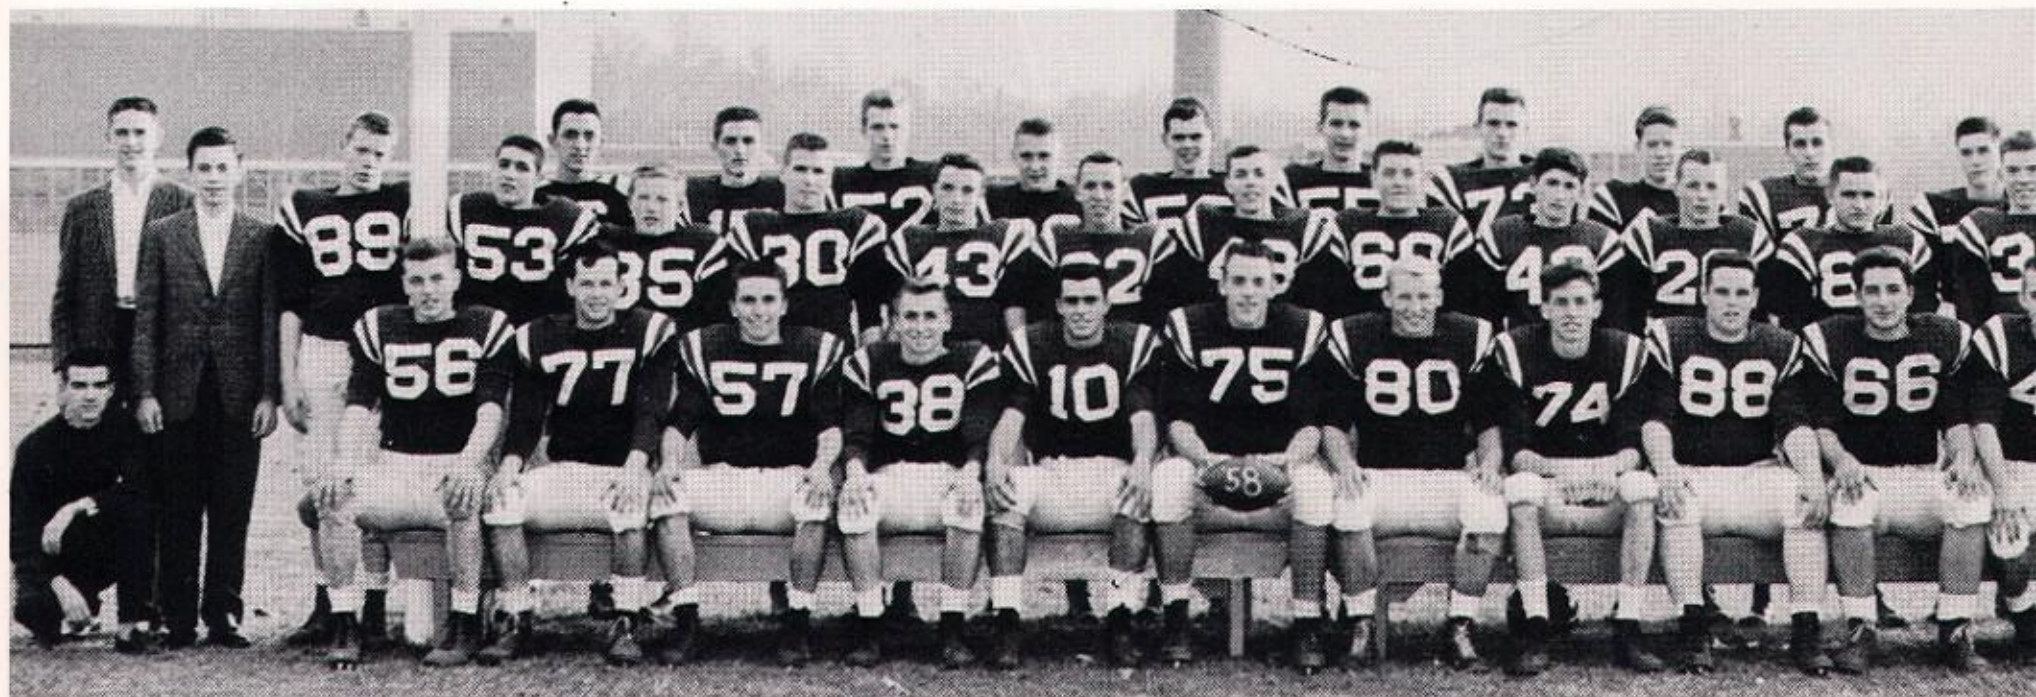

TO ACHIEVE

With knowledge received, the individual is now in a position to manifest the skills he has attained. While reflecting on what he has learned and experienced in the classrooms of Lyman Hall, he now performs duties which are carried to successful conclusions.

Relearning, through extra-curricular activities, comprises the greatest part of this manifestation. It is here that the energetic enthusiasm and loyal spirit of a busy student body radiate through the atmosphere of Lyman Hall. Hence, the individual is given the valuable opportunity of expressing himself and working with others in student affairs.

To prepare for the inevitable "battle of life" is the intent of the young men who engage in football. This sport teaches a boy in his formative years to control and command his own powers, to focus them upon a single end, and to mobilize them quickly and completely. At the same time he learns to observe the rules of the game, to regard the rights of others, to follow the dictates of decency and sportsmanship, to accept responsibility and to value the will to win. The purpose of basketball is to develop its participants physically and mentally, both as individuals and within the group. Participation encourages correct health practices and self-sacrifice; sportsmanship and self-control in tense situations and aids in mental development. Game situations clearly illustrate what a group can achieve with the correct contributions of each member.

A.A. ADVISORS

CROSS COUNTRY: This group competes with teams from other schools in running over a two-and-one-half mile course. The team that first gets five men across the finish line wins the match. Cross country running demands the utmost in physical and mental discipline, as well as physical endurance. It develops muscular coordination, strong lungs, and determination. The team was organized this year by Mr. Falk.

THE ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION finances all sports and enables students to attend games at money-saving rates. Its treasury handles moneys received from admission to all sports events.

Mr. Coleman, Mr. Gracianstein, and Mr. Harlowe are in charge of the Athletic Association's selling of A.A. tickets and game tickets.

GIRLS' LEAGUE FORMAL

To give an opportunity to all Lyman Hall girls to gain social poise through experiencing a formal dancing party in a lovely traditional setting, the annual Girls' League Formal is held in December of each year. Miss Ethel Kennedy, Dean of Girls, is the director of this event, which is one of the social highlights of the year.

CHAIRMEN

Beverly Calza, Janet Middlesworth, Michelina Bodnar, Karen Kearns, Sally Carr, Patricia Lynch, Marilyn Aristosky.

SENIOR PROM

SENIOR PROM COMMITTEE

Chairmen: Margaret O'Neil, Sara Worthington, Michelina Bodnar, Beverly Calza, Mary Ann Comen, Suzanne Dubiell.

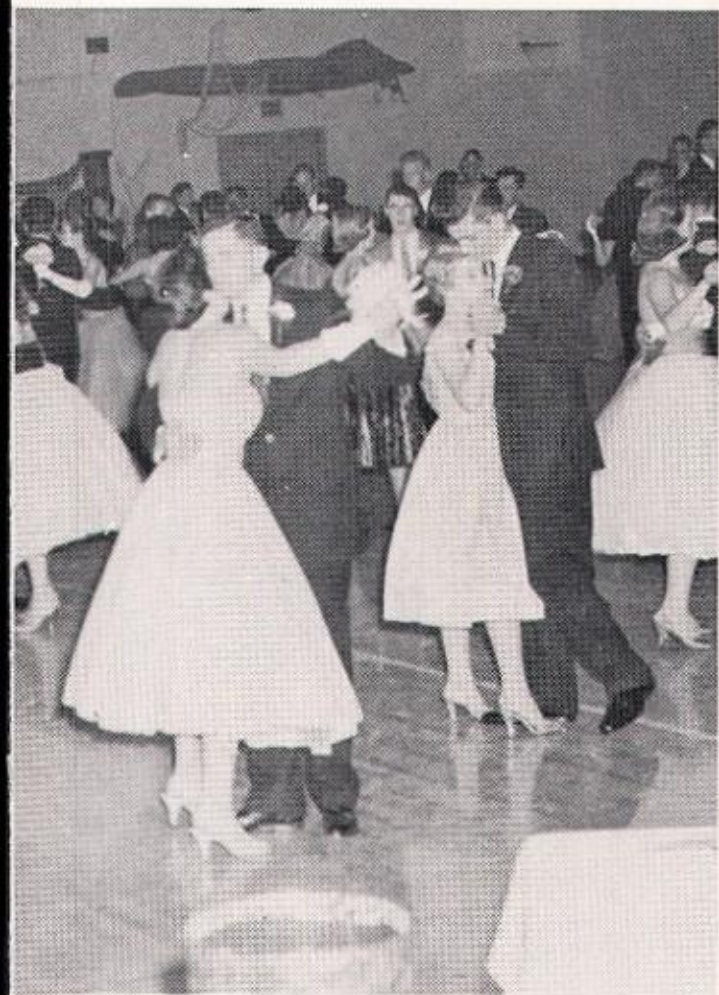

To choose one of their number as Queen to reign over the festivities of their semi-formal dance, the seniors traditionally hold their Senior Prom in mid-November. This dance, under the guidance of Mrs. Mildred Bohannah, senior class advisor, is attended by many parents and alumni as well. This year Margaret O'Neil was crowned queen, and Janet Middlesworth and Valerie Rondina were her attendants.

JUNIOR PROM

To bid farewell to the seniors in an atmosphere of fun and gaiety, the Junior Promenade is the final formal dance of the year. This affair, under the supervision of Miss Muriel Quint, is a fitting occasion for the seniors to enjoy their last social event as Lyman Hall High School undergraduates. To the juniors it affords the first opportunity to experience the leadership which will soon be theirs.

interests in particular areas. Each area is under the guidance of a specialized science teacher.

The Math-Science Fair, sponsored jointly by the Mathematics and Science Departments, has a two-fold purpose: to stimulate student interest in the increasingly important fields of science, and to acquaint townspeople with the various areas. The Fair opens with a lively student assembly; planes zooming, teeter boards, swings, pulleys, wheels, and flipping coins dramatize many scientific principles.

SCIENCE FAIR

There are two major divisions: the Junior High in the Boys' gymnasium and the Senior High in the girls'. Exhibits may be entered in any of three classifications: Biological, Mathematical, and Physical. A good entry should show coordination of mathematics with physics, chemistry, and English. Each exhibit should include a booklet showing the origin of the project, the scientific principle involved, mathematical calculations, and a research report. The two divisions are judged separately and there are three prizes in each classification. The best exhibit in each division receives a grand prize. A Math-Science Memorial Scholarship is awarded at graduation to a senior participant.

LAUREL GIRLS' STATE: NUTMEG BOYS' STATE

To present the youth of Connecticut with more knowledge about the function of their state government by actual practice and participation. Also, to provide an opportunity to meet people from all over the state and to experience a week of college life.

Third row: Virginia Young, Linda Lohfink, Barbara Pattee, Patricia Watson, Patricia Lynch, Rose Tenza, Marilyn Recor, Carolyn Sequist.

GIRLS' LEAGUE

To deal with the problems common to all members is the purpose of the Girls' League. A few of the outstanding activities presented each year by the league are the Christmas Formal, the Christmas Pageant, and a Fashion Show. This organization is under the guidance of Miss Ethel Kennedy.

LAUREL-NUTMEG REPRESENTATIVES

BOYS' LEAGUE EXECUTIVE BOARD

Second row: Harold Thpdy, Clifford Trowbridge, Gilbert Jerzyk, Ronald Gavette, Fred Rich, Morris Otis, Louis St. Onge,

BOYS' LEAGUE

To provide opportunities for service and sociability among the students of the school is the function of the Boys' League. Projects of particular interest to boys and activities which boys can carry out most satisfactorily are undertaken by the league. Monthly meetings are held under the direction of Mr. James Quinn.

THE STUDENT COUNCIL

Second row: Sheila Balassa, Mauriann Parmelee, Susan Tremper, Lynn Grasser, Nancy DiFranco, Lois Bentley.

Third row: Valerie Rondina, Barbara Fischer, Edward Turlis, Frank Aguilera, Patricia Watson, Beverly Eaton, Marilyn Aris-

Not present: Susan Shulga.

The Student Council, the student governing body, serves to establish better relationships between teachers and students and to help in solving many school problems. The Council is affiliated with the Housatonic League of Student Councils, the Connecticut Federation of Student Councils, the New England Student Government Association, and the National Association of Student Councils. Advisors to the group are Mr. Richard Burner and Mr. Stuart Coleman.

STUDENT COUNCIL OFFICERS

STUDENT COUNCIL IN SESSION

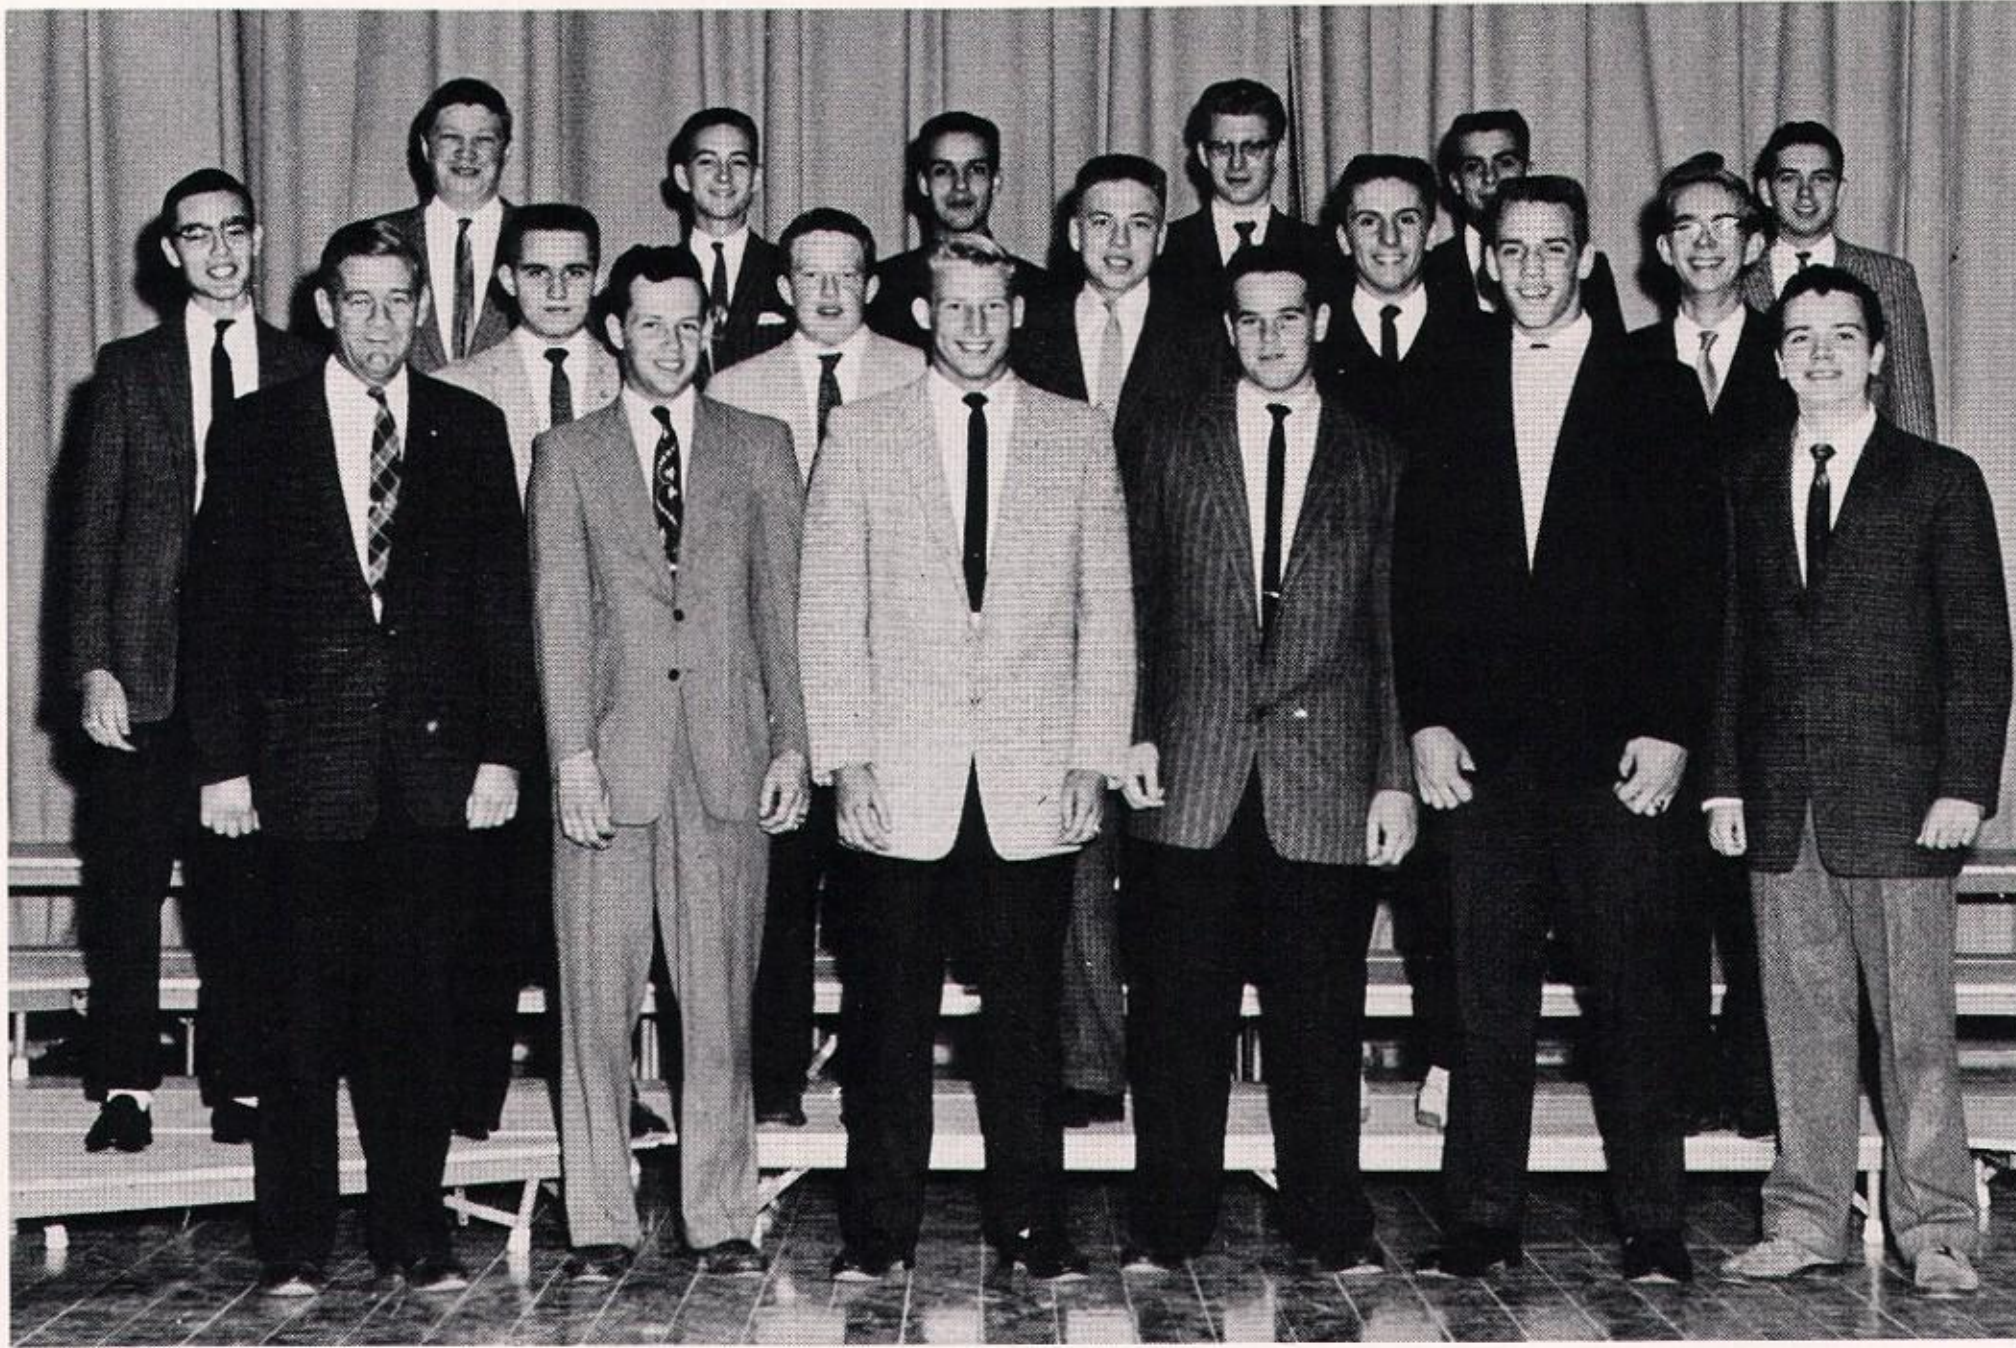

STUDENT COUNCIL ADVISORS
Mr. Coleman and Mr. Burner

Among the Council's projects this year were the following: managing a concession stand at the football and basketball games; selling pins, pom-poms and banners to promote school spirit; sponsoring dances for the student body; establishing a school calendar; recommending assembly programs; and regulating traffic in the halls.

KEY CLUB

President, James Bilyak; Vice-President, Victor Eager; Secretary, Peter Gerosa; Treasurer, Donald Curtis.

Second row: Malcolm McPherson, Kenneth Warzocha, Robert Regan, William Bayne, Kenneth Marhevka, David Lord.
Third row: Lawrence Cerri, John Knowles, Thomas Selmecki, Michael Brodsky, Donald Warzocha, and David Thayer.

The Key Club is first and last a service club. As a member of the Key Club, one learns to unselfishly serve his faculty, fellow students, school and community. By learning to do things for others, one will be acquiring the necessary training of a good citizen and leader.

One of the fundamental objects of a Key Club is to build better communities. This is done by assisting the underprivileged, promoting better business standards, conserving our natural resources, stressing the importance of the home, the church, and the school.

Thus, through the activities of Key Clubbing, the member receives due compensation for being an active member. Key Clubbing develops initiative and a sense of leadership; it provides experience in living and working together; it teaches the value of service and cooperation; and finally, it prepares young men for useful citizenship.

NATIONAL HONOR SOCIETY

Members elected in their junior year:
 First row, left to right: Neill Buckley, President; Mary Ann Comen, Secretary; John Zubeckis, Vice-President.
 Second row: Susan Shulga, Gary Sebastian, Judith Buttner.
 Third row: Aivar Kleinhofs, Donald Curtis, William Bayne.
 Absent: Julia Johnson, Joyce Regan.

FEBRUARY, 1959

 Second row: Shirley Self, Janet Passarino, Judy Buttner, Beverly Eaton, Patricia Church, Susan Shulga.

Third row: Lois Ann Brooks, Aivar Kleinhofs, Donald Curtis, Gary Sebastian, William Ganner.
 Absent: William Bayne, Julia Johnson, John Zubeckis.

To promote and recognize scholarship, service, character and leadership, the National Honor Society was established at Lyman Hall High School in 1955. Success in attaining the goals is the requisite for membership, and the members are to uphold the ideals for which the society stands. Members are elected at the mid-term of the junior year, beginning of the senior year, and during the second half of the senior year.

Miss Ethel Kennedy advises the local chapter.

Yearbook editors are elected from and by staff members. With the cooperation of the entire senior class, they serve in their capacities from the time of election in the fall of each year until the yearbook is distributed prior to graduation in June. Miss Muriel Quint is the faculty member in charge of advising this activity. Mr. Jordan Abeshouse is art supervisor; Mrs. Mary Ann Menchise, literary advisor; Mr. John Mitchell, business manager.

A large, abstract, white, fibrous sculpture, possibly made of paper or fabric, is positioned on the left side of the page. It has a complex, layered structure with many thin, radiating strands that form a fan-like shape. The sculpture is set against a dark, heavily textured background that resembles stone or concrete. The lighting creates strong shadows, emphasizing the three-dimensional quality of the artwork.

TO COMMENCE

As the colorful maze of high school's last spring calmly, but swiftly, ebbs away, we find the time to look back to see what has been accomplished. Each member of the respective classes has his own interpretation of the closing school year. The sophomores sigh with relief, hoping that the coming years will prove to be even more successful. Meanwhile, the juniors are relishing the thought of becoming seniors. For the seniors, however, the dominant feeling is one of profound sorrow. With high school's last spring comes graduation, a farewell somewhat saddened by the thoughts of leaving good friends and the uncertain future which lies ahead. Each waning spring day deepens the melancholy, until the wandering weeks seem to signify an ending; it is like reading the final chapter of a well-loved book.

At the same time an invigorating feeling of beginning revives the seniors from their sad outlook; they may be uncertain as to what the future may hold, but no one is afraid. They are students of the Lyman Hall High School, and they are confident of their preparation. This is security enough to make graduation the real beginning of their lives.

CLASS HISTORY

Unofficially our careers as L.H.H.S. students began in June 1955 when, at the close of our eighth-grade year, we listened to the opening address by Mr. Fernald and Dr. Latimer. With hints as to what to expect in our new environment, we anticipated the coming of fall and our success as freshmen at Lyman Hall.

As shy freshmen, we wandered about in the haze of the busy high school life; we tried to be as inconspicuous as possible. We began to feel more a part of high school life when we took part in our freshman Get-Acquainted Dance. As our social life expanded, we attended the Halloween Party; and with the guidance of our master of ceremonies, Jeffrey Harkawick, we laughed and cheered John Cislo, who was the Most Original Scarecrow. For leadership in our first year, we elected Janet Middlesworth, Joyce Regan, Sally Carr, Michelina Bodnar, Donald Curtis, Kenneth Marhevka, Robert Tremblay, and Norton Ingraham as our representatives to the Student Council. As the months passed by, we settled into the routine of high school life. Before we knew it, June was upon us and we welcomed the summer's rest.

As we entered Lyman Hall in the fall, we were aware that we were no longer unaccustomed Freshmen, but well-acquainted Sophomores. Janet Middlesworth and Donald Curtis were chosen as our scribes to the Chronicle. The success of the Sophomore Dance, "Oriental Fling," was due mainly to the hard work and planning of Suzanne Dubiell, our decoration chairman. We also enjoyed cheering at the basketball games, since some of our classmates, John Koski, Donald Warzocha, and Donald Curtis, were playing Varsity. The months quickly flew by and summer was near at hand. We all anticipated our vacation.

Along with a new school year came a new school, which provided excitement and a greater measure of pride. We were now upper classmen, yet we, too, were trying to get accustomed to new surroundings and new class schedules. We attended our first class meeting and also elected class officers: Donald Warzocha, president; Kenneth Marhevka, vice president; Margaret O'Neil, treasurer; Susan Shulga, secretary. Our next duty was to select our class rings, class motto, class colors, and class flower. To help us in this trying task we selected Neill Buckley, Mary Ann Comen, Janet Middlesworth, Karen Kearns, Judith Dechert, and Patricia Ott. Our class motto read as follows: "Today We Follow, Tomorrow We Lead." The rose was chosen to be the flower, and class colors selected were red and white. During this eventful year, we watched and anticipated the success of our rocketeers, William Bayne, Neill Buckley, David Gay. They did not manage to elevate their "project Alpha," but they did succeed in showing us the work and interest they had in rocketeering.

The time flew by quickly and we all anticipated the coming of May and our "Junior Prom." Under the able leadership of Beverly Eaton, our general chairman, and Suzanne Dubiell, our decoration chairman, we were conveyed into a world of "Moonglow," starlight, and sweet music. Then we said farewell to our school books and teachers, and entered the world of summer sports and recreation.

When we returned in the Fall, we found once again the homework, the schoolbooks, and the melodic chime of the passing bell. The first class meeting was a turmoil of nominations for class officers and prom chairmen. We elected, as our leaders through this most important year, Donald Warzocha as president, James Bilyak as vice president, Mary Ann Comen as treasurer, and Janet Middlesworth as scribe. By this time the first great event of the year was at hand. The Senior Prom was a fantasy of abstract

Grecian scenes and mobiles. The honored person who was responsible for this unforgettable event was Margaret O'Neil, our general chairman. Helping to make this event successful were Sue Dubiell, our decoration chairman; Beverly Calza, our programs chairman; Mary Ann Comen, our music chairman; Sarah Worthington, our refreshments chairman; and Michelina Bodnar, our invitations chairman. The highlight of the evening was the crowning of our class queen by Mr. Fernald. As the suspense mounted, we watched Margaret O'Neil crowned queen, as her pretty pair of attendants, Valerie Rondina and Janet Middlesworth looked on. Also during this month the D.A.R. Medal was awarded to Margaret O'Neil. At this time the seniors were primping and practising poses for class pictures. For many of the seniors this was the time of college boards. Surrounded by these hectic events, we all awaited and anticipated the coming of the holidays and the new year. The new year brought forth something entirely strange to most of us — midyears. We tried to review an entire semester's classwork and study; we were certainly relieved to have those tests behind us. The months swiftly passed, and, as we were fitted for our caps and gowns, we realized that our time of graduation had drawn very close. We would soon be walking down the aisles of the auditorium for the final time, although it would seem as if we were just beginning high school life. But as we face the future and our individual careers, we know that we have gained a great deal of valuable experience in our four years at L.H.H.S. We now realize that our high school life was not the end of knowledge, but the beginning, for "Today We Follow, Tomorrow We Lead."

A corridor is a friendly place. It is where we meet to discuss our problems, our classes, our hopes and our plans; it is where we encounter smiles, greetings, old and new friends. And when, in years to come, we return, it is the corridors that will first recall some of our lasting memories of Lyman Hall High School.

Our high school days are now over. Our development as individuals is as complete as the school has been able to make it. Now that graduation is at hand, and our future is about to begin, we say a reluctant good-bye to Lyman Hall High School.

*"While the sun is breaking on our new tomorrow,
The memories we shared are here to borrow.

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

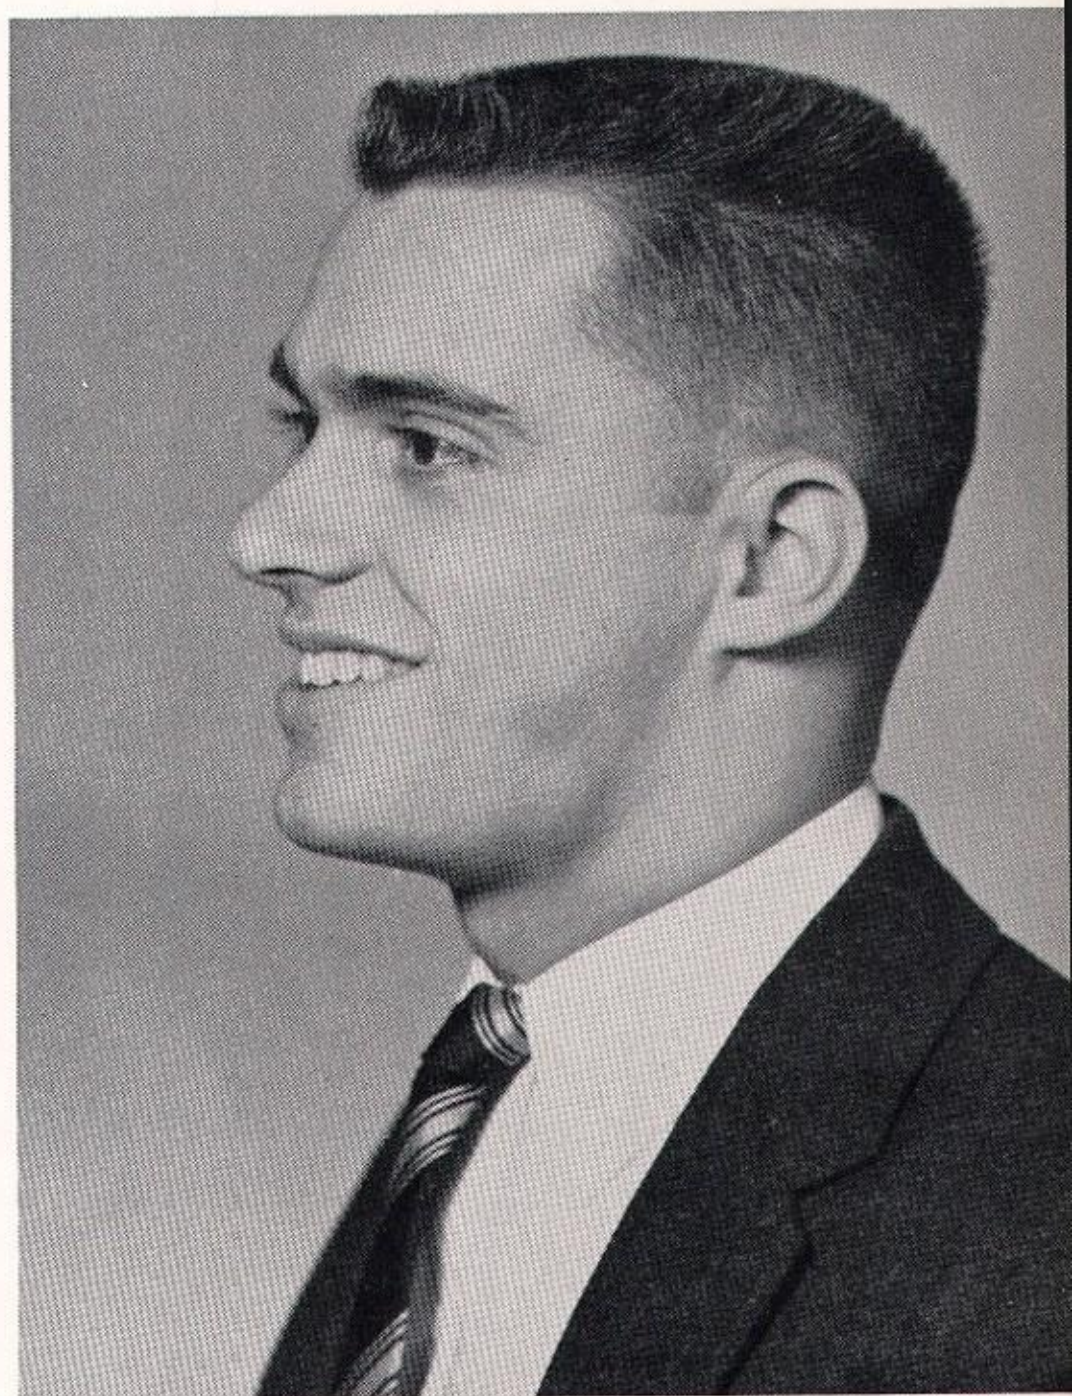

Dear Classmates,

We are now ending four years of learning. Besides the all-important academic knowledge and the social skills which we have gained, we have also learned the value of working together for the betterment of all. What we have received is the foundation upon which we must build to become better citizens of our town, our nation, and our world. As we go our separate ways, let us not forget what we have learned and those who have taught us.

To serve as your president for two years was an honor and a great experience. I would like to take this opportunity to thank all of you for your cooperation in our many class endeavors. It was you, yourselves, who made them worthwhile and successful.

I sincerely hope that all of you will reach your goals in life. May God bless you and help you attain them.

Sincerely yours,
Donald Warzocha
President,
